EDITORIAL

A problem that always confronts a town, be it large or small, is the education of its youth, and Taunton is no exception. Naturally the Journal is most interested in high school education so that it is with regret that we learn from time to time that for financial reasons pupils often have to leave school. We are sorry that mere dollars and cents frequently stand in the way of a high school diploma. We know of several cases where pupils through various combinations of circumstances are unable to complete their studies without help. Do the citizens of Taunton want their youth to suffer this serious handicap?

It is to assist these deserving boys and girls that we hope to find financial aid. To allow these pupils to stay in school means that they will be able to complete their coveted education and thus make them better fitted to earn a living and to live. Scholarships in college have proved themselves of substantial benefit. May they not be invaluable also in high school? One plan for making this fund available is through contributions by business and professional men. Taunton has many a public-spirited citizen. Is there one to rise to this occasion? May there be many citizens to respond! Perhaps we as a class in after years may be able to sacrifice and have a share in this noble civic enterprise.

CLASS HISTORY

KATHARINE DAVOL

WHEN the Class of 1922 entered Taunton High School nearly four years ago, we were the greenest ever. We assembled two hundred and eighty-one strong and had the honor of being the first freshman class to enter the new building. For once the freshmen were no more at loss in finding their way around the building then the seniors; the building was as new to them as it was to us. Three classes of students represented our class that first day: those who came for study; those who came for mischief; and those who came out of obedience to their parents.

After we had been in school several weeks, the flu raged to such an extent that school was closed for a month. When this vacation was over, we settled down to business. Toward the middle of the year a surprising announcement issued from the office. No mid-years! School had been interrupted too seriously by the flu. After we had recovered from this shock, we began our class organization by electing at our first class meeting Edward Hubbard, president; George Hemingway, vice-president; Ruth Hastings, secretary; William Reed, treasurer; and Christine White, a member of the School Council.

The next fall we returned as "the know-it-all sophomores". Our class officers were Christine White, president; Linwood Brassell, vice president; Ruth Hastings, secretary; Nelson Broadhurst, treasurer. This year the running of the football banquet fell upon us—as it does upon all sophomores. How we hustled around the lunch room on the day of the banquet. We decorated, made butter balls, cooked, set tables, and, in general, worked like beavers. Later on in the year at our social with the freshmen, we had "movies", dancing, and refreshments. It was not an extremely lively affair, for many of the boys declined to dance. Could they have been bashful? Social error!! To look at those same boys now and try to imagine them as diffident is next to impossible.

It was our junior year that we studied the hardest. Oral themes became so numerous that we soon overcame that dreadful "quaking" with which we had previously been afflicted. It was then that we had our trials with Mr. W——r. Our class officers were Bradford Young, president; Nelson Broadhurst, vice president; Ruth Hastings, secretary; Hazel Lapham, treasurer. In April, the French play " Treize a la Table," was given at a meeting of Le Cercle Francais. The cast was composed of both juniors and seniors. Later on we gave the seniors a reception. The entertainment consisted of Mr. Yarrick, a magician, who held us spell-bound at his weird sleight-of-hand. How we marveled at the "egg in the bag" trick! Following this, dancing and refresments were enjoyed. Several members of our class made there debut as actors in "Daddy Long Legs," which was presented by the school on June 24, 1921.

Now we are seniors. Our class officers are August Miller, president; Bradford Young, vice president; Hazel Lapham, secretary; George Rowland, treasurer. There are one hundred and nineteen in our class this year. For the first part of this year the social life of our class, as a whole, was not very active. But the various organizations have distinguished themselves in one way or another. The Prize Drills have been very successful, nearly all credit being due to our senior officers. Those of us taking history have enjoyed the meetings of the History Club, especially the socials where we may dance to our hearts' content, and eat till the counters are clean. We feel very proud of our Debating Team and appreciate the time and work which it so willingly spent for the honor of our class and the High School. We are planning to have a reception with the juniors which will probably come in April or May. Now our thoughts are centered on graduation, and before we realize it our High School days will be over. But we all agree that our four years here have been the very happiest years of our lives.

In closing may I express, in behalf of the class, our gratitude to Miss Murphy, our class adviser, whose wise counsel has been invaluable. From many a shoal and rock has she steered the class of 1922.

ELTON STAPLES

LAST week after I arrived from a tour in Europe on which I was selling the famous Robbins Peanut Vending Machine, I made my way from Boston to Newport to get the summer sale. I was not disappointed to find it necessary to wait three hours in Taunton, for I had not seen the old town for eighteen years, two years after I graduated from T. H. S. Not far from the station, in a stately building —YOUNG'S BARBER SHOP—I sat down to rest and to have my beard curled. As I sat in the head barber's chair, I recognized George Rowland as the fat man with the curlers. Just then a rippling voice attracted my attention, and someone in the exact likeness of Gertrude Ryan handed a package to Fat. Since he didn't look especially vicious, I thought it safe to query, "Is she any relation to "Gert "Ryan?"

"Daughter," he replied.

Then he recognized me. He showered my wig with Young's talcum powders, shined my beard with Young's lotions, and dosed me with Young's perfumes.

As I alighted from the only throne I had ever held, in walked Bradford Young, with his chauffeur, who was carrying two cases.

"Put them here, Jack," he said, in such a way that immediately I knew he must be the "Young" on all the articles in sight. I handed him a leaflet, which explained the machine I was selling, and began to talk business. He called me into a small private office and, as he sat down, he saw the name "Staples" on the bottom of the card. Well, we forgot all about peanuts and began to talk old times.

The first thing he said was, "Did you know that "Stu" White is a minister!" I soon recovered from the shock, and he further explained that Stu had taken up chemistry as a side line and had made thousands with a popular"Non-sneezer" mixture which he had invented. Then he gave me a bit of his own history, explaining that soon after he left college he went into the barber business, later bought up a chain of barber shops, and then began manufacturing barbers' supplies and toilet articles. Besides Fat, he had on his payroll, Jack Wheeler, his chauffeur; Ruth Hastings, head clerk; Clinton Antine, superintendent of his manufacturing plant; John Scanlon, caretaker of his Florida estate; Leo Teplow, foreman of his racing stables; and Nelson Broadhurst, who, with his wife, was the caretaker of his city home.

He insisted on my staying overnight and going to the theatre. We then strolled down High Street, and I encounted numerous surprises. The first was a sign,

MORTON WIENERT
HAIRDRESSER

The second was a subway station where George Haskins was collecting nickels. But the fatal blow was the sight of George Goward, a traffic cop on the corner of High and Cohannet Streets.

As I stepped into the street to speak to him, a terrific force lifted me, and I knew no more until I woke in a hospital and found Doctor Elizabeth Hodges nearby. She said that nothing serious was the matter with me, for by the wonderful pressure treatment, invented by Edward Hubbard, founder of the Pressure Set School, she had set three ribs and remodeled my head. She further informed me that I had been run over by a "Blue Fly", the grand new one-hundred-thousand-dollar automobile designed and manufactured by John Nichols and Arthur Noia, and run by John Pimental. She handed me my bill and said my cure was guaranteed for a year. We walked down the corridor and saw Doris Molden pushing Lois Leonard, who was in a wheelchair, reading a copy of The Rehoboth Herald, owned and edited by Miriam Oxnard. Lois said teaching school had been too much for her and now she was receiving treatment for her brain. She informed us that George Canham had carried away all the honors in the big contest in last year's Brockton Fair.

Next to the restaurant was Marjorie Dean's law office. She had recently dabbled in politics and was now representing the Taunton district in the Senate. The restaurant was run by Marion Miller and Ethel Traynor. It had all the modern improvements: electric waiters, airplane landings, (would also accommodate autoplanes) and a beauty parlor where Caroline Casella and Gladys Powers made people look like flappers. We learned that Dorothy Taylor was cook and that Everett Parlow was bottle washer.

When we crossed Taunton Green, a faker was declaiming the value of his wares in profound tones. He assured his listeners that there was immense value in his solid silver spoons with gold plated bowls, worth several dollars, for only thirty cents a piece. After a minute's hesitation I recognized Frank Cohen and beat a hasty retreat before I was induced to spend my last cent.

We went to Russell Hathaway's Playhouse where Gladys MacDonald's "Fair-Forty" was playing. The leading chirper was Mildred Allyn, whose falsetto aroused the audience to mad applause. Belinda Snow and Bertha Williams were also wildly applauded for their clog dancing. Other members of the cast were Elizabeth Kiernan, Lillian Lamont, Helen Doherty, and Emily Thompson. Herman Spousta conducted his Imperial Orchestra in such a commendable manner that Mayor Katherine Davol, the mayor who was responsible for the great civic advancement, engaged him to play on the Green during her next campaign. I learned that through her cello and with Agnes Raycroft as campaign leader she had captivated the hearts of the voting populace and was elected mayor by the largest majority in the history of the city. As we left the theatre, I saw Howard Carroll and Maurice Klein's lunch cart across the way, where Norman Cameron was eating a hot dog.

In the morning (at the New Central Station) I purchased a Newport ticket from Linwood Brassell, and bought a paper from Frank Tracy. It was the Morning Chronicle, edited by Walter King. I saw Frank Kiernan shining Leo Strange's shoes in a corner, and Herbert McAdam driving an electric express truck through the gates to the baggage room. Thelma Sheidow was ambulating up and down in police woman's uniform. Suddenly she started on a run down the platform, and I followed not far behind and saw Francis Andrews badly damage Maurice Cohen's eye. She succeeded in separating them and marched them away by the collar.

Seated in the train, (I could not afford the aerial express) I glanced through the columns of Taunton's leading paper. I read in the sport section that the city baseball team, The Red Herrings, owned by Lindsay Phillips, Albert Higginbotham, and Alfred Buhl, had gone bankrupt. I saw that Allen Freeman had set a new swimming record, not having landed for fifteen hours one Sunday afternoon.

Just then Ruth Hanley took possession of the seat in front of me, (which I discovered was manufactured by William Marsden in Troy, New York). In our short conversation I learned that Dorothea Mehegan had married an English Lord and settled in Ireland; that Christine White had recently been elected Governor of California; that Edith Pepper and Eveline McRae were sailing around the world on a hunt for the elixir of perpetual youth; that Miriam Mackenzie had committed matrimony and was living in state in New Jersey; and that Wilma Sinclair was secretary to the President of the United States.

When Ruth left, I took up the paper again and was reading about Eugene Cusick's recent successful visit to Mount Vesuvius in order to check the eruption of the volcano, when Charles Doherty nudged me for my ticket. I next read of Jacob Berkover's advancement from Corporal to Commander of the Indian Army in Africa. The officers of the Maiden Ladies Club were announced as follows: President, Doris Davis; Vice President, Elsie Croacher; second Vice President, Victoria Menice; Secretary, Mary Hurley; Treasurer, Alvina Glenn. Other members mentioned in the article were Irene De Sousa, Louise Pietch, and Nora Ptak. An advertisement in the corner read, "PATRONIZE MERLE SANDERS'S STUDIO." I looked around for other news of my classmates and discovered that Maurice Solmer had recently published"MY CASTLES IN THE AIR," and that Margaret Copeland and Marion Bullock were conducting a trans-Atlantic airplane line. The main article on the comic page was contributed by Wendell Blake.

On my arrival in Newport the familiar name appeared thus: "MARY VEIGN, SINGING LESSONS." I saw Viola West driving a patrol wagon. I stopped at the Newport National Bank to cash a check and saw Herbert Gorton in the president's chair in the office. Malcolm Crossman was Paying Teller. He told me that William "Scup" Masterson was refereeing at a boxing match in Meacock's skating rink that night and that it was worth seeing, but I didn't dare take the chance of going to a boxing match.

Just across from the Bank, dazzling gilt letters read, "MISSES LAHAR and ATHERTON, CHIROPODISTS." Beneath was a placard announcing that Miss Mildred Atherton was giving free reducing exercises. I entered a candy store to sell my wares and, upon asking to see the manager, Dorothea Bruce stepped forth. But luck was against me. She would have nothing to do with any new-fangled way to sell peanuts. On another street a shop bore the sign,

MISSES MACOMBER AND MACOMBER

LADIES' FANCY NOVELTIES.

I soon tired of traveling and when I saw a sign reading, "REST IN DAVIS AND DAY'S HANGING GARDENS," I followed the arrow, and quickly reached the cozy nook. There I paid George Hemingway a dime and stepped inside. Sweet odors of incense were wafted on mild zephyrs, and birds were singing in the tropical shrubs. I sank onto a bench beneath a swinging palm and was dozing when Dorothy Tallon drove up in a donkey cart. She was selling drinks, candies, and papers.

I bought a Society Herald whose leading article was the account of a party given by Mr. and Mrs. August Miller. I was immediately interested to learn more and upon inquiring of an attendant was informed that "Mr. Miller am de biggest man in de whole world, sho am, married into de Ford family an' 'herited all de millions. Has airplanes, autoplanes automobiles, yachts 'n every thing,'n gave me a dollar one time too. He sho' am fine fellar."

I read that Hazel Lapham had returned from Paris where she had been studying art. Of course I looked into the Lost and Found Column and saw there—"LOST, A THOROUGHBRED RENOVA WHITE RAT, ANSWERS TO THE NAME OF PETIE. When last seen was chasing a bulldog up Sawyer Street. If the finder will return him to Miss Gertrude Berkman, 1071 Sawyer Street, he will receive a handsome reward."

A lecture was to be given that evening by David O'Keefe, on "My Trip to Mars." At once I decided to go, and had the extra pleasure of an interview with the far-famed "Heavens-Piercer." Ethel Brimicombe accompanied him as business manager. Dave said his career began when, in company with George McLaughlin, he began making balloon couches, the kind that hang about a mile above the earth. One day a balloon broke loose while he was asleep in the couch. When he awoke, he was so far up in the sky that Earth and Mars looked about the same size. By manipulating the devices on the balloon, he got back to earth the next day and immediately began an investigation. With the aid of Lester Immerman he was able to discover that a small column of air connected the two planets. This discovery was his means of success.

When leaving the hall, I met Muriel Chase and Mildred Weyman tending the Salvation Army Kettle. I put in a nickel I had been saving for six months to give to Thomas Avylla, from whom I borrowed it one day when I met him in Bimini Bay with Elizabeth Lawlor. I used it to buy some gum for Mildred McNamara whom I met on the beach with Margaret Marie, both looking as though their last friends had departed.

Arriving at the hotel again, I settled down to read a bit in order to calm my nerves. An article in the society Herald, headed "EDWIN DUNN INJURED IN GALLANT'S ZOOLOGICAL CARDEN", attracted my attention. He was washing the mud from the feet of Ben, his pet turtle, when the creature, which, he stated later he had forgotten to feed, bit a mouthful out of his arm. Dr. James Fishwick was called and said that if he didn't worry about the fidelity of his pet, he would pull through all right. Another article announced that detectives Helen Edwards and Worthen Germond had succeeded in tracking down William Gibbons, the famous bandit and New York terror. As I closed the paper, I spied in the bottom corner,"Virginia Raycroft, All kinds of Wigs, Latest Styles."

Just before going to sleep I thought over all the classmates of whom I had so recently heard and soon was dreaming a brilliant dream about Ruth Andrews, who was teaching school in South Africa. Strangely enough all the pupils looked like Gladys Flavin.

A thumping on the door awoke me, and Edwin Bergold brought me a telegram from the Robbins Peanut Vending Machine Company which read,"REACH BRADFORD YOUNG AS SOON AS YOU CAN. HE WIRED US TO HAVE YOU CALL AS HE WANTS TO EQUIP HIS BARBER SHOPS WITH OUR MACHINES."

CLASS WILL

WE, the Class of 1922, confident of the fact that we shall soon graduate, hereby revoke, cancel, and annul all previous wills and codicils and declare this to be our last will and testament.

FIRST: To the class of 1925, we bequeath the unlimited use of the Lunch Room during recess periods.

SECOND: To the class of 1924, we leave our patrol wagon, clubs, swords, and other paraphernalia used in our police work.

THIRD: To the class of 1923, our respected successors, we will our newly-built and well-constructed athletic field.

PERSONAL BEQUESTS

C. Antine:—My "Elsie" Smith to "Scup" Masterson '23, who needs plenty of practice.

L. Brassell:—To Bub Hawkins, my position as leader of the "Tweet" Orchestra in 101.

F. Cohen:—To Mr. W-lk-r, my intimate friendship with "Velvet Joe".

K. Davol:—To any person sitting in Mr. W-lk-r's room, my shock absorbers which will probably be needed many times. To Harriet Warner '23, my excessive obesity.

D. Day:—To R. Wicher '23, my girlish modesty.

I. DeSousa:—My important position as library attendant, with my unsurpassed ability to provide eleventh-hour freshmen with short book reports, to Marguerite Tracy '23.

Sergeant Dunn:—My well-tailored cadet suit to anyone who wishes to appear immodest.

G. Goward:—My pearl handled safety razor with the rubber blades to L. M. '23, providing he uses it daily.

R. Hathaway:—My book entitled " Debating Made Easy" to the janitor. My season ticket to the discipline room to H. Hawkins '23.

E. Hodges:—To the next pianist in semi-chorus, I leave my grandstand seat.

E. Hubbard:—The tremulo of my knees during parade to the next Admiral. My hat to anyone who doesn't mind wearing a floor-mop.

Kappa Phi Delta:—To the Kappa Phi Delta of '23, our ability to make money, and to get in and out of trouble, and our front seats in the Assembly Hall.

D. Lahar:—To "Dot" Keith '23, my ability to convince teachers that it is entirely unnecessary to report for discipline.

A. Miller:—My incomparable experience as a Ford mechanic to "Mickey" White '24. To "Pop" Walker '24, my many invitations to dine at a four o'clock tea. To Mr. K-p-r, my imported Mongolian tie.

M. Oxnard:—To B. Knox '23, my ability to translate Virgil at sight (when only I have done it the day before.)

L. Phillips:—To McNelly '23, my private still and tobacco farm.

M. Solmer:—To B. Teplow '23, my barbed-wire, self-dripping fountain pen.

E. Staples:—To those that are jealous, I gladly bequeath my extra-ordinary powers of talking much and saying little.

L. Teplow:—To whoever has the nerve to take Trig. in the years to come, my ability to make Miss B-l-rd talk on any subject except Trig.

J. S. White:—My Ford to Miss S——, in order that she may get back for the afternoon sessions.

M. Wienert:—My turquoise framed glasses to Mr. F-s-th.----. An alarm clock to Mr. K-p-r, in order that he may study the evolution of a "psychological moment".

B. Williams:—My antipathy to "chocolate-covered parallelopipedons" stuffed with ice cream, to whoever may wish it.

B. Young:—To L. MacAdam '23, my ability to dodge Winthrop Street lamp-posts at one A. M. Sunday mornings. To E. Swan '23, my "drug store" complexion.

T. Club:—To the members of "23," two stacks of shingles before the next initiation.

"JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES"

BERTHA WILLIAMS

MRS. Burrs was a living danger sign, a veritable Stop, Look, and Listen with emphasis on the Listen. In short, Mrs. Burrs was a gossip! "Hev you heard?" Hortense Yelle, sitting bolt upright in her customary chair, evidently had not, for she placidly continued to jab the point of an unsuspecting needle at a seemingly endless length of thread. Ova Dunn, fair, fat and forty, bent visibly nearer in mute appeal, and Eliza Primm, her dangerously spear-like scissors poised in mid-air, stared at the speaker in keen anticipation. Mrs. Burrs, apparently satisfied with the result of her query, eyed her devout followers with approval, selected a bonbon, and shyly proclaimed that she really didn't know as she "hed ought to tell it."

Just then the stately figure of Miss D. S. M. Van Percy appeared in the door-way, and the topic of the moment was laid aside until the aristocratic idol of the T. N. S. Welfare Society had been duly admired and made comfortable.

Shortly after, Mrs. Burrs, herself, resumed the subject by demanding, "What do you think, Hortense? If you was me, would you tell it?"

Hortense, unfortunately, was deaf, and her only reply was a mild "Eh?" Mrs. Burrs did not repeat the question—it was unnecessary. For Miss D. S. M. Van Percy, after biting her lower lip with singularly white and even teeth—Van Percy teeth, the pride of generations—encouraged in her monotonously iambic, yet exceedingly admired tongue, "I really don't see why you shouldn't tell. It's just be*tween* our*selves*, you know!" And Miss D. S. M's wishes were law.

"It really is hard to believe, an' I wouldn't repeat a word of it to anyone but you, a' course, but from wot Mrs. Maker tole me an' wot I see with my own eyes, I shud say I'm pretty well informed." Mrs. Burrs paused to impress the point, and no one showed the slightest sign of impatience. Mrs. Myra C. Burrs was not to be hurried! Ova Dunn settled her horn-rimmed spectacles more firmly on the bridge of her nose, and waited. Miss Van Percy cocked her head, birdlike, on one side, and decided on a peppermint. Hortense Yelle sewed calmly on!

"Well," the gossip conceded at length, "it was this way. You know that young Atkins fellow wot lives down Mrs. Maker's boarding house? Right across the street from me? Well, he's gone an' went ter work—" Mrs. Burrs paused as if that capped the climax. Ova Dunn, for the first time that day, stopped chewing her basting thread. Miss D. S. M. Van Percy lifted one eyebrow disdainfully. "and eloped with Emmie Grant," Mrs. Burrs finished triumphantly. Miss Van Percy raised her other eyebrow. Ova Dunn began chewing again.

"The idea!" Eliza Primm drawled, her mouth full of pins. Mrs. Burrs was already off again on her story.

"I ben expectin' it right along," she declared, nodding her head sagely. "Why just t' other day I run in ter see Emmie, an' she was hiding away a lot o' white goods. And I'll stake my good name that I see a weddin' veil ahangin' up in her closet an' I set to wond'rin' right then an' there as ter who'd be a likely chap. Then I 'membered seein' her come up in the car t'other day with thet Atkins chap, and he seemed uncommon friendly, too, carryin' her bundles an' all, an' I spoke to Mrs. Maker 'bout her makin' them weddin' clo'es an' she said she 'lowed she dunno but she might be, but she couldn't say nothin' as to the man. But then, yer know, Mrs. Maker never did get the whole story, an' what she can't say, I can".

"Ya see, I wcke up night 'fore last 'bout one o'clock. I'd left the window up all night by mistake, an' it was cold enough in that room to freeze the horns off a brass monkey. An' I never could sleep in a cold room. Well, I pulled up the shade and looked out just in time ter see Bill Atkins steer Emmie Grant an' a suit-case inter his car. They was mighty careful not ter make a mite o' noise an' ef I hadn't see 'em under the street light, I'd o' plumb swore they was burglars. Then it come ter me right off 'at they was elopin'!"

"The idea!" drawled Eliza Primm.

"Just what I expected!" Miss Van Percy proclaimed with conviction.

"I ain't a mite surprised," Ova Dunn declared substituting her basting thread with another peppermint.

Hortense Yelle sewed calmly on!

Mrs. Burrs was just opening her mouth to make further remarks, when the door opened and in walked Emmie Grant. On her hand there flasked a sparkling diamond, but no wedding ring, and everyone turned accusing eyes on Mrs. Burrs—that is, everyone but Hortense Yelle, who beamed on the new-comer and began in a high-pitched little shriek, "How's yer father, Emmie?"

Emmie Grant snuggled down contentedly in the big morris chair, with a little sigh of relief. "Oh, dad's all right. It's Mandy, the cook, that's all to blame. She's so fond of Dad that if he winks an eyelash she's afraid for his life. It was just an attack of indigestion, but she sent me a telegram in the middle of the night, and got me all worked up. And if Mr. Atkins hadn't come home from the dance just in time to drive me to the station, I'd have surely lost the train."

"You say he's better?" Hortense Yelle demanded.

"Much better, but I'm going to Peacedale soon and look after him. Besides, " Emmie blushed divinely, "I'm to be married in June."

Mrs. Burrs raised her eye-brows, smiling triumph in her eyes. "Some one around here?" she cooed sweetly.

"Oh, no, to a boy down home—and I'll live in a much better neighborhood then."

"So will we!" Mrs. Burrs muttered tartly, finding three pairs of accusing eyes again fixed on hers——"Well, I swan," the gossip declared later, "ain't it funny how things turn out?—But hev you heard about that Lane affair?"

Ova Dunn bent visibly nearer in mute appeal. Miss D. S. M. Van Percy cocked her head, birdlike, on one side, and offered a peppermint to Eliza Primm.

Hortense Yelle sewed calmly on!

Class Play 1921

CHRISTINE WHITE

IN the spring of 1921 interest centered in the Junior-Senior Class Play. The Senior Committee, after some debate, chose "Daddy Long Legs," a very amusing and interesting comedy.

The cast selected after a tryout was as follows:

Jervis Pendleton	Russell Hathaway
James McBride	Ralph Dickerman
Cyrus Wyoff	Albert Carr
Abner Parsons	William Swift
Griggs	Elton Staples
Judy Abbott	Bradford Young
Walters	Viola Rayment
Miss Pritchard	Gladys McDonald
Mrs. Pendleton	Louise Witherell
Julia Pendleton	Helen Wiley
Sallie McBride	Francis Quinlan
Mrs. Semple Mrs. Lippett	Christine White
Maid Carrie	Irene De Sousa
Sadie Kote	Elinor Sampson
Gladiola	Mary Phipps
Loretta	Muriel Snow
Freddie Perkins	Albert Short

Week in and week out for two months Mr. Parker and Miss Chandler coached us that we might become letter perfect, and shine as true stars on the eventful night. A throughly appreciative audience packed the Assembly Hall and pronounced the play the best ever. The proceeds from the play enabled us to purchase two sets of scenery for future plays.

HISTORY CLUB EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

MR. KEPNER (Chairman) GAFFNEY YOUNG O'KEEFE
MIRIAM OXNARD MARGERY DEAN CAROLYN WASHBURN

HISTORY CLUB

DAVID O'KEEFE

UNDER the leadership of Mr. Kepner, the Taunton High School organized a History Club composed of more than a hundred students in American History and Economics who have attained an average of seventy percent or more. Through participation in its various activities, the members are developing attractively the following club principles:

(a) Further knowledge of history and current events.

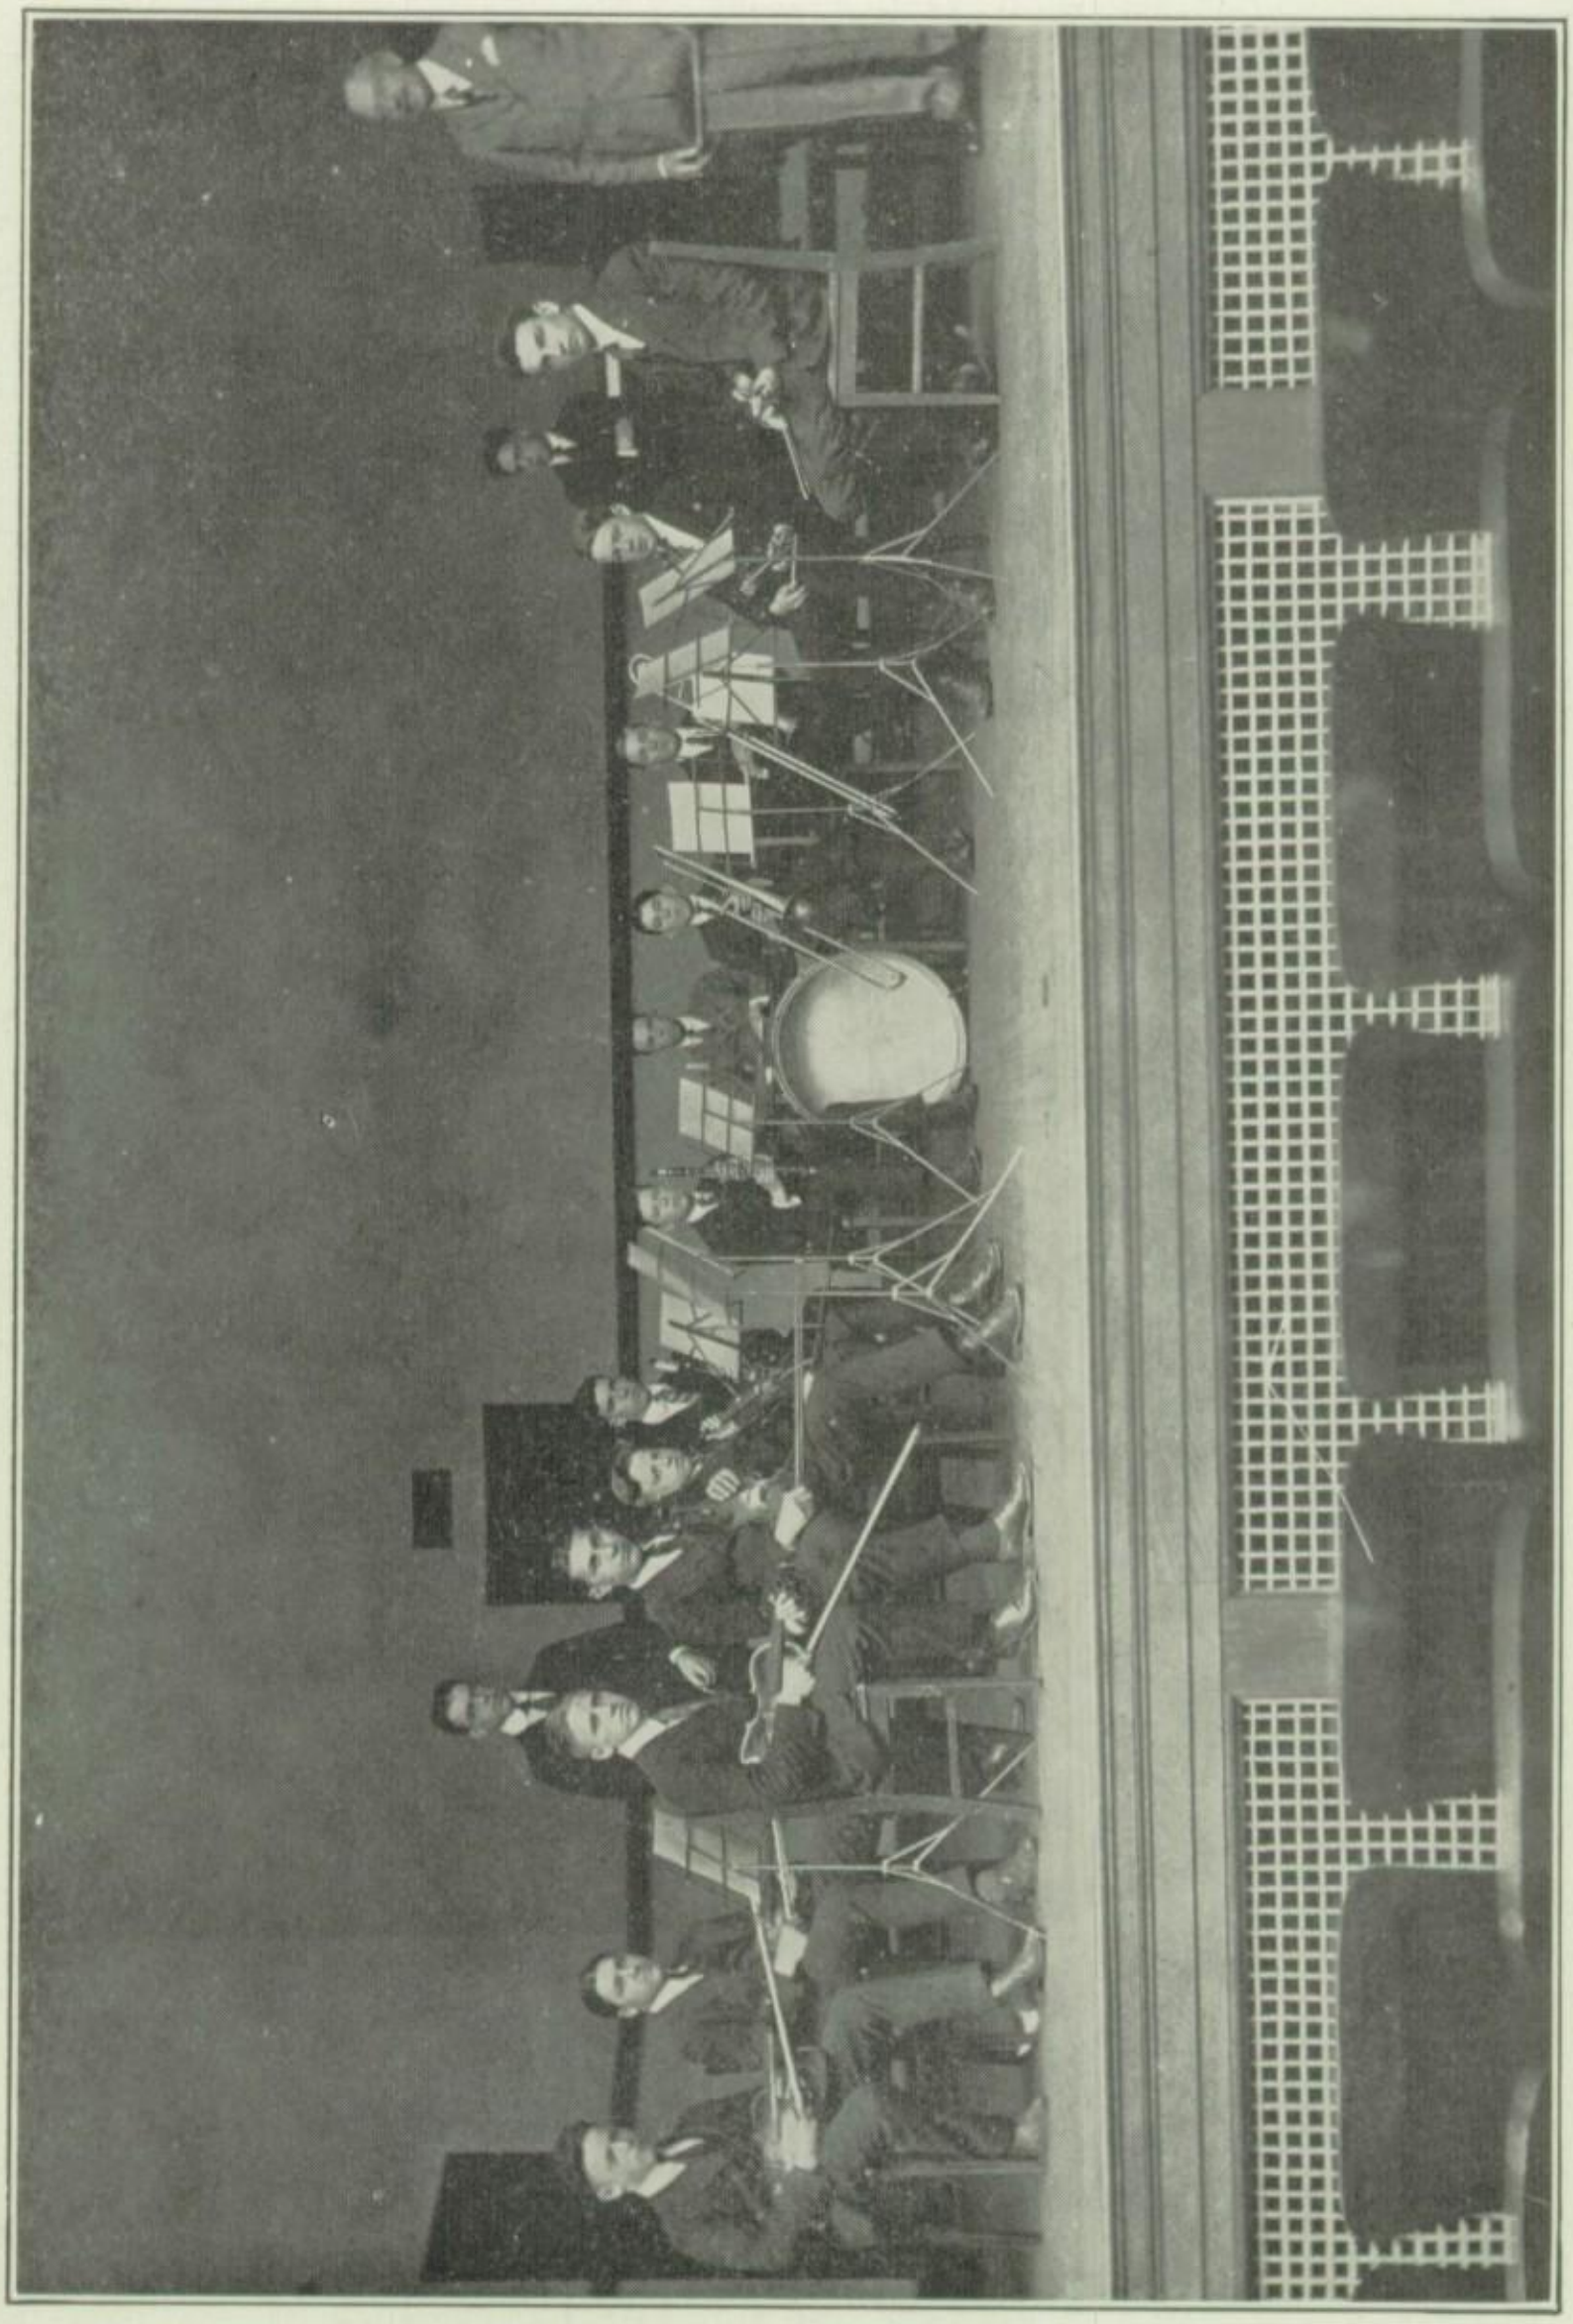
(b) Sociability in the student body.

(c) Fundamentals of parliamentary law and speaking.

(d) Encouragement of scholarship.

Five interesting meetings have been held. Mayor Coughlin has talked on city government; Ex-speaker Joseph E. Warner organized the club as a House of Representatives and gave practice in legislating; there has been one social meeting, and one open meeting presenting Lieutenant Bishop and the "Flashes of Action", the only official war film; Councilman Cain has spoken on newspapers; and at a meeting in Historical Hall in conjunction with the Old Colony Historical Society, the Club has read papers on the early history of Taunton.

For this year the club elected the following officers: David F. O'Keefe, president; Bradford Young, Vice President; Margery Dean, secretary; Miriam Oxnard, treasurer; Edward Hubbard, Carolyn Washburn, and Joseph Gaffney, Executive committee.



High School Orchestra

THE ORCHESTRA

HERMANN SPOUSTA

THE Orchestra, now in its second year, under the leadership of Mr. Walter J. Clemson and Mr. Robert H. Park, has had a successful season. It meets Wednesday evenings for two hours of practice. It has played a few times at school assemblies, and its first public performance this year was at the Inaugural exercises of the Mayor-elect of Taunton.

The following are members of the Orchestra:

1st Violin

FRANK COHEN — EARL SUNDERLAND — MORRIS GOLLUB
ARTHUR SMERDON — PAUL GOLDSTEIN — ELMER CAMPBELL

2nd Violin

HERMANN SPOUSTA — EDWIN WARNER

Clarinet

JAMES KEARNEY — KENNETH GARSIDE

Trombone

JOSEPH GAFFNEY — SHELDON WILLIAMS

Drums

HUBERT HAWKINS

Piano

RAYMOND WICHER

HOOD (Coach) HIGGINBOTHAM McNELLY HEMINGWAY MASTERSON TRACY BUHL DANOLDS (Coach)
ROWLAND BERKOVER F. COHEN BUCKLEY BARBLOM McCARTHY
MAXWELL LEONARD CAMERON M. COHEN (Captain) KENNEDY WHEELER BORDEN

FRANK COHEN

THE Taunton High School football team of '21, still suffering from the need of a suitable athletic field, began practice in the first week of October in response to a call for candidates by Coach Danolds and Captain Cohen. As F. Tracy, F. Cohen A. Higginbotham, F. McNelly, and H. Blood, veterans of '20, all responded the school looked forward to a good season. The first game was with Weymouth High. After a hard fought game, Taunton won by a 7-0 score. However the team of '21 suffered here because of a poor schedule: after the Weymouth game, Taunton did not have another game for three weeks. Durfee High, composed of a veteran team and having played four games, naturally took our team into camp by a 0-21 score. The following week after some changes had been made in the lineup, Taunton defeated Howard 26-0. The next game with the strong Tabor Academy outfit resulted in a scoreless tie. After a good exhibition of football, Taunton was on the short end of 0-9 at New Bedford. The game with Whitman resulted in a 6-7 score in favor of that fast outfit. Taunton then prepared for the Thanksgiving Day game with Mansfield. After putting up a real football game, the Orange and Black lost in the last two minutes of play to the heavier team from Mansfield by 7-13 score.

The team of '21 was not the best football team that represented this school; however, it had the real fighting spirit, win or lose, and that is what counts as true sportsmanship.

"T" CLUB

Under the supervision of Principal Ward the "T" club, composed of members of the football and baseball squads that have earned their letter, was reorganized in February. The election of officers resulted in Albert Higginbotham president, William Masterson vice president, George Hemingway treasurer, and Frank McNelly secretary. Initiation was held in March and, because of the good work of the committee consisting of "Pat" Danolds, "Joe" Hood, "Bolshevik" Cohen, "Lizzie" Phillips, and "Le Petit" Cohen, proved a huge success.

BASE BALL TEAM 1922

DANOLDS (Coach) BUCKLEY (Manager)

BOARDMAN, PHILLIPS — HATHAWAY, HEMINGWAY — KING, McNELLY — GERMOND, HIGGINBOTHAM (Capt.) — CRAMER, MASTERSON — BUHL, O'LEARY — RAPHAEL, SPOUSTA

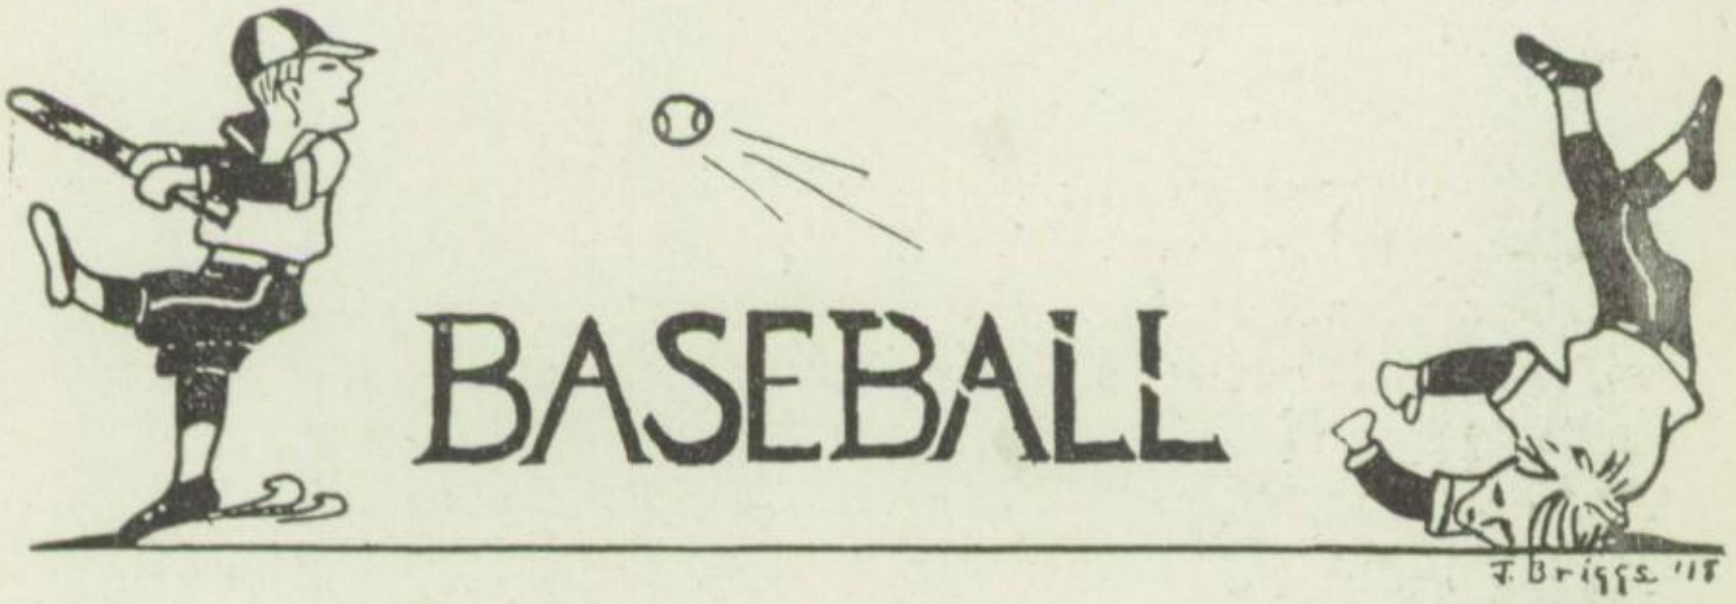
The wearers of the "T"; Football: M. Cohen, F. Cohen, F. Tracy, A. Higginbotham, F. McNelly, Masterson, Gordon, Spousta, Maxwell, Buckley, Berkover, McCarthy, G. Hemingway, H. Blood, J. Wheeler, Bablom, Kennedy, Buhl and Leonard. Baseball: Higginbotham, McNally, Masterson, Phillips, F. Cohen, G. Hemingway, Buhl, M. Cohen, and F. King.



With seven members of last year's strong team still in school Taunton hopes to be represented by one of the best baseball teams in this section of New England. With much available material, Captain Higginbotham and Coach Danolds had difficulty in selecting a squad.

CHRISTINE WHITE

WHEN two of our best debaters graduated last June, people looked at each other mournfully and said, "We'll never have so good a team again." But this year we have deceived these pessimistic forecasts by producing a championship team.

After the try-outs in January the team selected was as follows: 1st speaker Frank Cohen, 2nd speaker Christine White, 3rd speaker Russell Hathaway, Alternate John Wheeler.

In January we entered the Brown Interscholastic Debating League, consisting of seven Massachusetts and Rhode Island high schools. The question debated was Resolved that the Panama Canal Act of 1912 be re-enacted. Taunton did not debate the first round but in the second round, upholding the negative, we defeated the Providence Classical High School. Again on the negative side we defeated in the finals the Rogers High School of Newport, thereby winning the Brown Cup for one year.

Our debating teams have been undefeated for five years, and for the future is the task of maintaining this reputation and of winning again the Brown Cup.

EDWARD R. HUBBARD

AN unusually early start was made this year, the first roll-call coming on the second day of school. After a few periods spent in review work, about sixty recruits were enrolled, bringing the total strength of the battalion to approximately one hundred and twenty, which is slightly less than last year's number. The large amount of material in the senior class, and the consequent keen competition for sabers, delayed somewhat the appointment of officers. The following is the roster appointed by Major Danforth and approved by the High School Committee.

Major Edward R. Hubbard 1*st. Lieutenant & Adjutant* J. Stuart White

Co. A.		Co. B.
Captains	Bradford Young	Clinton C. Antine
1*st. Lieutenants*	Elton Staples	Frank Cohen
2*nd. Lieutenants*	Arthur Noia	George Goward

Battalion Color Sergeant Russell Hathaway

Instruction in the manual of arms was intensified in order to prepare the men for the prize drill held in the Armory on December 26th. The 1st prize was won by Sergeant Blake; 2nd prize by Sergeant Robbins; 3rd prize by Color Sergeant Hathaway, and honorable mention by Corporal Beaman. Shortly afterward, the matter of a third company was considered, but the school showed that it is not ready for this, and only three or four men were enrolled. About the same time also, the cadets favored the suggestion that certain of the proceeds of the dances be given by the organization to one of its members who is desirous of attending some higher institution, and who would do so if he were given financial aid.

We received some instruction in the duties of a sentinel, and preceding the next social function of the season, which was held on the evening of Feburary 17th, the ceremony of formal Guard Mounting was performed.

The days just before the prize drill of April 26th were spent in practising the various movements incident to riot and battalion drill, while the time after this was distributed among Butt's manual, extended order drill, and street parade. The captains have begun to whip their companies into shape in expectation of June 9th. The freshmen do calisthenics in preparation for the exhibition for the benefit of the eighth-grade boys. The seniors are planning to do some work in the shooting gallery.

We may well credit the high status of our organization to the untiring efforts of our instructor, Major Norris O. Danforth. The Cadets have become a vital part of our school activities and have set a standard for neighboring cities. The benefits of this training vary directly with the enthusiasm of the individual, and when there is a whole-hearted coöperation on his part, each man will improve his physique, and will develop those qualities which are the result of discipline—poise, self-confidence, self-control, and obedience. If in any man this has been accomplished this year, we shall have achieved something of our purpose, that is, to make MEN.

Who's Who and Why.

THE class of 1922 hereby brings forth its list of "Green-Book" eligibles together with notation of certain popular opinions. These facts and fancies were all properly determined by official ballots cast by the members of the Board.

Who of the class of 1922 is the most popular with the fellows? There's no doubt "Gushing" Gerty Ryan wins by a mile.

Who is the most popular with the ladies? Lots of competition for this honor! However, they say B(eauteous) Young has smashed many a little heart in his time and is still in the game.

Who is our biggest dub! Nine tenths of the fellows claim this honor for themselves.

Who is our arrow collar ad representative? "Dinty" Day.

Our best athlete? Flip a jit between A(ble-bodied) Higginbotham and M(ighty) Cohen.

Our Beau Brummell? Mr. Blake wins without disturbing a hair.

Our worst athlete? It's said that G(raceful) Rowland started across the common as the Winthrop Street Car was leaving Weir Street----and lost it.

Our best dancer? E(xperienced) Pepper wins by a landslide vote.

What's our indoor sport? Why, how human they are after all! By those "family firesides" (minus most of the family) and-Oh! Man!!!

What's our wildest ambition? What could be wilder than a dream of graduating some day? Some few expressed rather tame desires like inheriting a million or getting married.

JOKES and GRINDS

BRADFORD YOUNG

One day as I chanced to pass,
A beaver was damming a river;
And a man who had run out of gas
Was doing the same to his fliver.

Three Years From Now

FIRST College Man: "I want you to come to our dance tonight."
SECOND Ditto: "Thanks. Is it formal; or shall I wear my own clothes?"

—'23: "If the principal doesn't take back what he said this morning, I am going to leave school".
—'22: "What did he say?"
—'23: "He told me to leave school."

Got a Girl?

36% said: "Yea, Bo."
24% said: "Not one, several."
24% said: "Never can tell."
16% said: "H——, No!!!!"

Mr. H.: "Mr. Phillips, will you please see me at three?"
Phillips: (Half-asleep from excessive study the night previous) "Sure, I will see you and raise you five."

WHEELER: "How do you cool your automobile?"
Wienert: "By stripping the gears."

Mr. K——r: "Upon what does the strength of a company rest?"
Hubbard: "Its assets."

Mr. W——r: "Which is right, Rowland, the former or the latter method?"
Rowland: "The former."
Mr. W.: "Which is the former?"
Rowland: "I don't know."

Winning a Wife

When	and	How
Stone Age		Crack
Middle Age		Knack
Modern Age		Jack

L. M.: "Hello! can you tell me-hic where ish the opposite side of this-hic street?"
Pedestrian: "Why, right over there, of course."
L. M.: "Aw gwan. A fellow over there jusht told me that thish was it."

Our Athletes' Idea

Mr. H. "What very useful thing are we turning our forests into every day, McNelly?"
McNelly: "Baseball bats."

G. MILLER: "Do you like Sports?"
M. Needham: "Yes, but father won't let them stay long."

She wrote to him and said
Dear "Thrill",
Won't you invite me
To the Drill?
If you're too bashful
I've got Jack.
Fine! Bring it all dear.
He wrote back.
I thank you

DEPENDABILITY

DEPENDABILITY is the anchor that holds the ship in any storm—the friendship that fails not—the promise that is not broken, no matter what the cost—getting what you want and when you want it—
THAT'S DEPENDABILITY.

AWNING MAKERS ATTENTION

Before placing your order for awning supplies remember there are three essentials to be considered

PRICE Our Prices are right because of quantity purchasing.

QUALITY Our Quality is superior because we buy the best.

SERVICE Our Service is prompt because we employ efficient help.

Therefore it is essential to the buyer to consider Price, Quality and Service before placing his order elsewhere. We have purchased a large stock of awning supplies in anticipation of the coming Spring business, which from all appearances now looks as though it would eclipse that of 1921. Come in and see or send for our samples and prices.
